Vol. 6, #4 - Fall 2009 (#27)

We must speak for silence would shame us, and the rocks themselves would cry out... You, O Lord Christ Jesus, must be praised for who You are in the world You have made.

Why Should Jesus Be the Only Way to God?

Christians are often deemed "intolerant" because we say there is only one way to get to God. This characterization is misplaced. It is Jesus who is intolerant. As a disciple of Jesus, I have no choice but to believe that Jesus is the only way to the Father for the simple reason that He said so. John 14:6 - Jesus answered, "I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me." So then, we must ask, what gives Jesus the authority to make such a claim. To answer that question, we must look at See Only Way on page 4

Hello! The latest science is full of new findings that show Jesus is Creator of the universe, you and us. Thank you for joining us in learning the Good News.

Injectites

What is an injectite? Injectites are featured at Kodachrome State park in Utah, but they are found all over the world. If you do a Google search, you will find they are of particular interest to the oil companies. The inside of this issue of Creation News Update is a poster that explains it all. CRM

Dawkins & Dennett Falisfy Evolution.

Hard to believe isn't it? Dawkins, who just released another book (The Greatest Show On Earth) truly did take the title from P.T. Barnum who allegedly said, "There is a sucker born every minute."

Dawkins forgets what he wrote just a few years ago. Atheist philosopher Daniel Dennett spells it out clearly on page

316 of Darwin's Dangerous idea, "The presence of functionless DNA in the genome is no longer regarded as a puzzle. Dawkins' (1976) selfish gene theory predicts it." Indeed, J.B.S. Haldane

Atheism 3.0

Atheism 1.0 was when atheists went about their work (often in science) but didn't make negative comments about other belief systems or make much of a stir regarding their atheism. Over the past decade or so, atheists such as Richard Dawkins have made a full-out assault on religion, Christianity in particular. It has been known informally as atheism 2.0. According to Dawkins, religion can do nothing positive and has done much negative to hurt humanity. A couple "negative" examples they forget to mention are establishment of the university system, creation of hospitals. Atheists 3.0 have appeared on the scene and acknowledge all the good Christianity has done including establishment of schools and clinics in 3rd world countries We have a couple of links on our web site to articles in the secular press regarding Atheism 3.0.

Cell Motors

More and more motors are being discovered in simple living cells. The latest I read about has paddles on it to force strings of amino acids through a recycling center so they can be reused. Scientists are discovering more and more complex machinery in simple cells. Every single motor is required for a cell to survive more than a few minutes. A living cell is irreducibly complex. It had to be created.

Where are Injectites Found?

Injectites are found all over the world. Photos 1-4 and 9 are from south-central Utah. There are 67 injectites in the immediate area. Photo 5 shows an injectite found about 40 miles south of those in Photos 1-4. There were a few in this area. Photo 6 is of a T-shirt from a geological conference held in October, 2008 in England. The conference was about nothing but injectites. The graphic on the shirt is of a seismograph of an injectite that is 3000 feet tall! This injectite is one of many beneath the North Sea. You can see on the shirt that oil companies sponsored the conference. Because of the huge oil reserves under the North Sea, geologists working for oil companies are very interested in injectites. They are attempting to determine the

What is a Sand Injectite?

A sand injectite, usually just called an injectite, is a sandstone conglomerate (made of various clumps of material) that has been pushed up from below. Photo 1 shows what we mean. Notice there is a layer of material (rock) that has been forced upward into the layer above. Photo 4 shows the largest injectite at Kodachrome State Park in Utah. That is a group of people at the lower right of the injectite.

Interpretation

First, let's look at the facts. The injectites in Photos 1 and 9 are seen projecting from the Entrada Sandstone. The Entrada Sandstone and some layers above it have eroded into a flat plane while the injectites, made of better cemented material, have not eroded as much. The injectites are composed of fine-grained sand, pebbles, cobbles, carbonized wood fragments and blocks of other sedimentary rock. About 300 feet below is a stratum that is of the same composition as the fine-grained sand that makes up the bulk of the injectites. Some injectites have penetrated over 800 feet of overhead strata and under the North Sea, the penetration is over 3000 feet. All geologists agree the injectites have penetrated hundreds of feet of sedimentary rock. Note that the injectites are better cemented than the younger rock they penetrate.

Some Characteristics

There are some differences in the rock around injectites. The photos below are of injectites within about a mile of each other.

Photo 7

Photo 7 shows that material through which the injectite was injected is apparently undisturbed by the injectite. The strata is not curved by the intrusion. The injectite has left rough edges where the injectite meets the strata.

Photo 8 shows an interesting formation where the strata on both sides of the injectite are curved downward. The injectite moved upward from below so it would be expected that if the injectite was responsible for bending the strata, it would bend it upwardly. Perhaps there was a void below and the wet material curved down as it dried. This created a weak spot an injectite could penetrate.

penetrated over 800 feet of overhead strata and under the North Sea, the penetration is over 3000 feet. All geologists agree the injectites have penetrated hundreds of feet of sedimentary rock. Note that the injectites are better cemented than the younger rock they penetrate.

Next, let's see where old-earth and young-earth interpretations agree. The sand was extremely soft, not yet rock when it was injected into the strata above. In other words, it was still wet. An earthquake shook the sand violently, forcing it up to the position where we see it now. Recently a study was published that concludes that the same earthquake distorted soft sediments in the Upper Cretaceous, rock that is supposedly 100 million years younger than the Entrada.

Old Earth Interpretation: There is no interpretation. At the conference in England mentioned in the article to the left, the question was asked, "What are the geological implications of these facts?" No one dared respond. It simply does not fit in old-earth geology. The best-case scenario is that sedimentary deposits remained wet and soft for seven million years, while strata above hardened (fragments of sedimentary rock in the injectites carried from below). The worst-case scenario is that buried strata remained soft and fluid for 100 million years while the sediments overhead hardened quickly. And, once the long-soft strata did harden, it became harder, better cemented, than the sedimentary rock (supposedly younger) above it.

Young Earth Interpretation: There are many implications in the facts. Sediments that are now well-cemented were still wet when projected through rock above. The sediments above were at least partially hardened at some levels as we find chunks of sedimentary rocks that were broken off and carried up with the injectite. But at the same time, they had to be soft enough to allow the injectite material to bore through them. It appears the injectite made the hole larger as it pushed upward. It is interesting that the injectites are roughly round in shape. They did not follow a crack or fault or they would be long and narrow like a sandstone or basalt dike. They "drilled" the holes as they progressed upwardly. Photo 1 shows what happens to a sand intrusion when it hits hard material. It is stopped. There were hundreds, sometimes thousands, of feet of sediment above the point where the earthquakes pushed the injectite up into the sediment above. In addition, new research indicates that rock 100 million years younger was wet at the same time as the injectite material.

Conclusion: All of the strata involved in injectites was recently deposited and still wet. Some of the strata had begun to harden resulting in chunks of sedimentary rock being broken off and transported up with the injectites. Conditions exactly like what we would expect in the aftermath of short-duration, world-wide flood is exactly what fits the facts. The sedimentary layers were laid down rapidly, in about a year. They were still in various stages of softness, having not fully dried and cemented in place. Earthquakes in various places resulted in extreme shaking of wet sediments. Some of those wet sediments were located at resonance points, shaking some layers of soft, wet sediment much more energetically so they became the sources of injectites.

The Question: How could all these layers, hundreds of feet of strata thickness, remain soft for tens of millions of years?

another claim Jesus made. John 8:58 - "I tell you the truth," Jesus answered, "before Abraham was born, I am!" These two statements together make a claim that no other prophet or religion has ever made. Confucius never made the claim. The author(s) of the Vedas do not make the claim. Some of the writings have some very powerful wisdom in them in places. Indeed, I spent 30 years teaching hands-on lab courses in a high school. I used hands-on because I believe Confucius is correct when he stated: I hear and I forget. I see and I remember. I do and I understand.

But Jesus made two claims that are unique among prophets. He claimed to be the source of truth and He claimed to be God, the Creator of the universe, you and me. Those are bold claims. They are either true or Jesus is a deranged lunatic. If you think Jesus was just a prophet or just a source of wisdom and sayings, you are incorrect. Either Jesus is God or was a fanatical liar.

Life continued from p. 1 pointed out that natural selection cannot select for millions of new mutations over the course of human evolution. It became known as Haldane's Dilemma. Junk DNA became the only possible solution to the problem, thus Dawkins was just reiterating what all biologists knew, the theory of evolution absolutely requires junk DNA and it is required in huge percentages. 97%-99% was the predicted amount.

By 2007 the following facts were established by humane genome research: (1) The amount of Junk DNA

News continued from p. 1 occur in every single cell of your body every single second. Not a single one of them is random or accidental. Every one is controlled by the cell operating system. They each occur exactly where they are needed exactly when they are needed.

Christianity is Good for Kids

More good news for those who know
For nothing is hidden that shall not become evident, nor anything secret that shall not be known and come to light.

Before He created the universe, God in the person of Jesus, knew we would sin against Him and reject Him. So, in advance, He made a way for us to get back to God. Why did He make only one way? Why not five, or ten or 200 ways? I don't know, but I have a suspension.

When Rick Warren wrote The Purpose Driven Life, his opening sentence was, "It's not about you." He explained why it is all about God, not us. You see, God is the Creator, and we are the created. The Creator gets to make the rules.

If it is all about God, and not us, what is the logical way to get man back to God? Every human is born a sinner. Every parent knows that every child is selfish until taught to share, lies long before we think it should be possible and in more ways that I can remember, are rebellious to authority. We sin because we are sinners; it is our nature because we have rejected God.

God, on the other hand, is perfectly good in His behavior. He never lies. He is not selfish. So, He had to is now ZERO. It is all being transcribed (93+%) or used in some other way. (2) "Junk DNA" is often transcribed 50 or more times more often than "not-junk DNA." (3) 95% of "junk DNA" is mutating at the same rate as the rest of DNA, meaning they are not subject to pressure from selection. This means selection cannot be a possible tool of evolution.

In other words, the only test for falsification that can be performed by looking at what is happening now has falsified evolution. It is now clear that Mutation + Selection = Evolution

Jesus. Children who live with both biological parents and attend church regularly are 5 times LESS likely to repeat a grade and are more likely to be cooperative and, this is important, more understanding of others' feelings. There is more to the story. We have a link on our home page.

Opisthotonic Position

This fancy phrase is usually referred to as the "death throes position." Many fossils of creatures, particularly dinosaurs era fossils, are found in the opisthotonic position. It is the position creatures take when they are asphyxiated. Evolutionists claim fossils were made by slow coverage of material over thousands of years. These fossils say they were buried quickly in mud... during Noah's Flood. CRM

There is only one way it can happen. God would have to become a man and live a perfectly sinless life. He would also have to die and unjustly serve the punishment of a sinner. Then God could look upon a person as sinless. It's all about Him so He had to do it all. We can do nothing to earn this sinlessness. He does require just one thing. We just have to recognize the truth of His marvelous gift of love in the sacrifice of Jesus, creator of the universe, you and me. It is that easy. It is God's desire that every person accept this gift. We have. There is lots of room in the family of God. You can continue to reject the creator of your life, but, please, won't you instead join us for eternity? CRM
