But Jesus answered, "I tell you, if these (his followers) become silent, the stones will cry out!" Luke 19:40

We must speak for silence would shame us, and the rocks themselves would cry out... You, O Lord Christ Jesus, must be praised for who You are in the world You have made.

Hello! The latest science is full of new findings that show that God, in the person of Jesus, is Creator of the universe, you and us. Thank you for joining us in learning the Good News.

It Gets More Worse...

In the previous two issues we have shown how the naturalists' explanation for the formation of strata layers simply does not work. We have extensive observations of how sediment layers come to be today. The process does not result in large areas of flat strata. But that is what we see in the rock record.

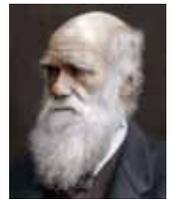

In this issue we concentrate specifically on the source of sediment. We will show that the naturalists' explanation doesn't

Quick Reasons Geological Naturalism is False

As we have shown in the past few issues, when it comes to strata layers, the naturalist narrative is based on assumptions that have been falsified by research (by naturalists!). What we see in the layers today and what the layers would look like using the naturalists' explanation are completely different. As we have pointed out regarding evolution, the naturalists' narrative does not fit with what we have discovered about DNA in the past 20 years.

As technology has advanced rapidly in the past 20 years, researchers have been able to see and analyze data that was only dreamed of in the Naturalism on page 3

Y Chromosome

In general, chromosomes are not any good for determining the history of their mutations. The reason is called "recombination." When the male and female chromosomes come together they exchange parts with each other, mixing up the gnome. This is good! It helps protect against the expression of bad mutations. Mitochondrion DNA only comes from females so they can be used to track mutations through time. The male Y chromosome can also be used because it has no chromosome to recombine with. Secular researchers have studied mutations in the human Y chromosome and their data shows that male humans came into existence about 6000 years ago! That matches data secular scientists have generated regarding female Mitochondrion DNA. The last 20 years has totally revolutionized our knowledge of DNA. Evolutionists continue to act like it is the 1980s. Those were good years for them. They presented evolutionary narratives that could not be tested. Now they can be tested. The narratives are wrong.

CHRIST OR CHRIST CONSCIOUSNESS (part 2)

In part one in our last issue, we discussed the difference between Christ and christ consciousness. Jesus is the Christ (literally: anointed -> the Messiah or savior). Christ consciousness is, very simplified: We are spirit in nature. We are part of a consciousness of the universe. We need to tap into the cosmic consciousness to become better people and have contentment on earth. We mentioned that those looking for christ consciousness believe that the Bible has been modified over the years. Legitimate research discounts those claims. Though a very few typos have crept in, the message of the Bible has been maintained amazingly well. And we showed that books not Christ on page 4 work and we will show the only process geologists know that can deposit large flat layers. First, we go back to the bottom of the first layer of strata built on top of the original basement rock of the earth. This boundary where sedimentary rock starts building on top of original rock is called the Great Unconformity.

In brief review of the naturalists' narrative, a continental plate is below sea level. Sediment settles out of the water to build a layer. The continental plate goes above sea level for a period of time and then returns to under sea level. A second layer builds up and the process repeats until there are many layers. Finally, the continent stays above sea level until today with us now observing 50 million years of erosion. Keep in mind that even naturalists have calculated that at current erosion rates, the continents would be eroded totally flat in much less than 50 million years.

We then showed what the layers would really look like due to erosion of each layer when the continent moved to above sea level.

We actually skipped a very important step. This is a step that naturalists skip. Where did the sediment come from that formed that first (magenta colored) layer? I have searched long and hard and have failed to find an explanation in any naturalist's narrative. If you have seen an explanation, please email me.

There is only one possibility. One or more continental plates must have its top above sea level for an extended period of time so sediment can be eroded off of it. Since the process starts with only basement (original earth) rock. The only source available is one of the continental plates. It cannot be an oceanic plate because all agree they have always been below sea level, After all, they are at the bottom of the seas.

This brings the next question. Has only one continental plate been above sea level or have most or all of them been above sea level at one time or another? Considering the amount of sediment we have on the continents and on the ocean floors, most or all of the plates had to have moved above sea level at some point to provide all the sediment.

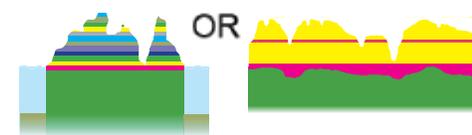

My graphics in the left column show the continental plate as having a flat top Why? Because everywhere we find the top of the continental crust it is virtually dead flat:

How can the Great Unconformity (the top of the original earth and start of sedimentary rock) be virtually flat everywhere? Under the naturalists' narrative it cannot be flat. It must show an erosional surface. Because they must supply the thousands of feet of hardened sediment (i.e. rock strata layers) we find on the continents, the surface must be highly eroded into a drainage system such as we see today as we look out our window. Therefore, Here is what the layers really should look like:

The green basement rock should probably be eroded even more dramatically than shown. The magenta and yellow layers show what they would look like after they are deposited and then eroded. But, that erosional drainage pattern is not what is found at the top of the continental crust. The problem is clear: Which one?:

Naturalists state: There is no reason to suppose that any kind of wasting ever planes an area to flatness: decrepitation (wasting, i.e. erosion) always roughens; rain-wash, even on ground already flat and smooth, tends to furrow it. (italics added).

If the continental crust is the source of the sediment that becomes the layers of strata on the continents, then there simply must be a non-flat, drainage eroded Great Unconformity. The only possible source of sediment to make the layers is the continental crust. The top of that crust must show great erosion.

Geologists agree that the top of the continental plates IS an erosional surface. But, the only way to get a large, flat erosional surface is to have a flow of water as wide as the area that is eroded flat and with the power to move across the entire expanse and erode the entire surface flat in one action! Anything smaller will erode drainages, not a flat surface.

If the naturalist narrative is true, there must be drainage erosion at the top of every layer of strata. If Noah's Flood was a series of gigantic tsunamis (the current creationist thinking) what you get is what we see. Many flat layers with no indications of drainage erosion.

But, it gets horribly worse for the naturalist. There are a couple dozen or more layers of sedimentary rock on each continent. To get sediment on one continent you have to erode the top of some other continental plate. But once the first layer has been deposited on a continental plate, it is that layer of sediment that gets eroded off. This means even greater drainage erosion on the top surface. You end up moving the same first layer of sediment from continent to continent. You can never have more than one or two layers of sediment on any given continent. How do you get more than a couple layers? The tsunamis of Noah's Flood.

God, in the person of Jesus created the laws of physics that control sediment deposition, the universe, you and me. Truth is staring right at you. God haters have made up a house of cards that cannot stand against knowledge of geological processes and common sense. The Bible is the source of Truth. Seek Jesus. CRM

1990s. But it is worse than that. Naturalist assumptions about many things have been taken as fact when it is now proven to be patently false. Below we list, with a brief description, a few of the more important items that falsify naturalism.

As you read, remember that the laws of physics (including chemistry) tell you two things: 1) What must happen in a particular set of circumstance and 2) the near-infinite things that cannot happen in a particular set of circumstances.

Naturalist Papers Identifying Ancient Proteins

About 100 papers have been published in secular science journals that have identified original proteins, blood vessels, cells and tissues from animals claimed to be 68 to 500+ MILLION years old. The breakdown of these items are well studied and documented and have been for 100+ years. Organic molecules are unstable. They break down rapidly once the cell dies.

Ancient DNA

Many papers have been published claiming to map DNA that is tens of thousands or even millions of years old. DNA has a half-life of 510 years. That means that of the 3 billion bonds in human DNA, 1.5 billion break 510 years after you die. In the next 510 years, half of the remaining bonds break. In only a few thousand years, the DNA has broken down into such short segments it cannot be compared to anything. Indeed, every day in every cell of your body your DNA breaks in over 1,000,000 places. This means that the first cell had to have DNA breakage detectors and repair mechanisms. (That last sentence in itself shows how amazingly complex a "simple" cell is.)

Mixing of Fossils

The impression given to the public is that fossils are found in isolation. They find a T-Rex and announce that fossil. What they don't tell you is that the most common fossil critter found with dinosaurs is clams. Clams live in water. Also found have been sharks and other sea creatures. What has never been reported is fossil vegetation. If these dinosaurs were buried where they lived where is all their food supply? Thousands of fossils of dinosaurs are found together. It is extremely rare to find a dinosaur fossil by itself. And, the bones are all mixed up. Amazingly, the larger thousands of bones found in any dinosaur graveyard are found at the bottom of the dinosaur bed. The bones get smaller as you go higher in the bed with the smallest bones at the top of the bed (or layer) of bones. This is exactly what would happen if the thousands of dinosaurs were caught in a gigantic flood of water. They would be torn apart so all of the bones of all the dinosaurs would be mixed together. When sediment is deposited by flowing water, the largest, densest material is deposited on the bottom with the smallest, lightest material deposited at the top of the deposit, just like in dinosaur graveyards.

Fossil Footprints

In the Moenkopi formation are tens of thousands of dinosaur tracks, many nearby us in Tuba City, AZ. But there is not a single dinosaur fossil bone to be found in the Moenkopi. You have to go higher up in the strata. There you will find dinosaur bones, but no footprints. This is true for many different species. In fact, it is the general characteristic of the fossil record that footprints are found in lower strata with the creature that makes the footprints in higher strata. Another prime example is the Coconino Formation. There are many footprints in the Coconino but no fossils of the actual creatures. Those fossils lie in strata higher up in the column.

Wrong Environment

Above the famous Jurassic layers of strata is strata that is supposedly between 66 and 145 million years old, known as the Cretaceous Period. Many dinosaurs are buried in these layers in Europe. Those European rocks are primarily marine rocks such as limestone and chalk. Marine means salt water. Why would dinosaurs be buried in layers formed in salt water... Unless the sea washed in and buried them, like in a tsunami?

Transitional Fossils

If dinosaurs turned into birds we should see a slow progression of fossils from huge reptiles (dinosaurs) to small birds. There are a few fossils, hotly debated even among evolutionists, that supposedly fit in the progression. There should be an easy to see progression of small changes from one kind of creature to another. Such a progression cannot be found for any change of any kind of creature into a different kind of creature...not one! Indeed, modern bird fossils have been found in the same age layers as dinosaurs. They lived at the same time.

Naturalism Assumptions

So much that naturalists say is fact is actually assumptions. For 200 years naturalists have taught "facts" that were actually assumptions. Just look at our series of articles on the making of rock strata. The naturalist story is all assumption. There is no actual data to back up the assumptions. A lack of technology to analyze data made it impossible to refute many assumptions. That has changed. Now we know the assumptions are false.

God, in the person of Jesus, wrote the Bible so you could know true Truth. He made that truth evident to anyone who looks at typical human behavior. One need only observe nature with a discerning mind to recognize that He created the universe, you and me. CRM included in the Bible were rejected for good reason. One of those reasons being the extreme subordination of women as taught in the Gospel of Thomas.

Those who seek christ consciousness have accepted that Jesus lived (that is a documented fact) and that he did spectacular miracles. When we were of the same persuasion I had a friend who said Jesus had an aura 6 miles in diameter. That is quite a large aura. No doubt, he was meek while strong, caring and compassionate, just what everyone would really like for a king or friend.

Ignored or grossly distorted are his words. Nobody wants this compassionate person to say things like: Matt. 10:32-37 Everyone therefore who shall confess Me before men, I will also confess him before My Father who is in heaven But whoever shall deny Me before men, I will also deny him before My Father who is in heaven. Do not think that I came to bring peace on the earth; I did not come to bring peace, but a sword. For I came to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; and a man's enemies will be the members of his household. He who loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me; and he who loves son or daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me.

Ouch. Tough words. Note that He explains that you don't seek christ consciousness, you confess Jesus, the person, as God. And where is the peace? Jesus was correct. We get some very nice e-mails from people who disagree with us, but we get some that are unpleasant. Jesus divides. The Red Rock news won't use Jesus' name in our publicity releases, editing them out.

Why such a explosive reaction? Because we all desire to be our own gods. We resist any other options. It is our sin nature. But Jesus claimed to be God many times, especially in the Book of John. Jesus is the son of God and, at the same time, the earthly manifestation of God the Father. Jesus and the Father are one, as Jesus said. We want to work our way to our own "redemption." But Jesus offers a gift of redemption which we can do nothing to earn. We simply need to accept the gift. It is the only redemption available. How incredibly loving is Jesus to offer it as a free gift!

I want to return to the idea that the universe has a conciseness that we need to tap into. I have heard a good friend say on several occasions that, The universe will take care of it. The universe is not God or a god or consciousness. The universe is a creation of God. But God is not a part of that creation. He is outside the creation while at the same time He is everywhere in His creation.

Please allow me an analogy. I have a model railroad. I designed it. I am building it. It is my little created universe. Am in the midst of my model railroad. I walk through it. I can change it at will. I make the rules on how it will operate, the purpose of each train. I can change a rule permanently or temporarily. There is nothing to stop me from any of the above. But, that railroad it not me. It cannot make decisions. It cannot change a single thing of its own accord. I maintain it. I sustain it. It can do nothing to maintain or sustain itself.

Romans 1:18-23 states, For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of people who suppress the truth in unrighteousness, because that which is known about God is evident within them; for God made it evident to them. For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes, that is, His eternal power and divine nature, have been clearly perceived, being understood by what has been made, so that they are without excuse. For even though they knew God, they did not honor Him as God or give thanks, but they became futile in their reasonings, and their senseless hearts were darkened. Claiming to be wise, they became fools, and they exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God for an image in the form of corruptible mankind, of birds, four-footed animals, and crawling creatures.

That passage describes the culture of today. My model railroad is not me and the universe is not God. God, in the person of Jesus is the Creator of the universe, you and me ... CRM

QUOTE:

"Natural Selection may explain the survival of the fittest but it cannot explain the arrival of the fittest."
- Hugo de Vries

POINT:

Hugo de Vries coined this sentence in 1904 but it was stated by many naturalists in a less concise way starting with Edward Drinker Cope in 1887. In fact, many scientists said that Darwin made a leap of faith because he never actually explained the origin of species. He did an excellent job of explaining survival of the fittest. But how does the species come about to begin with? Darwin thought all the information for new characteristics was already present in every living thing. It just had to be expressed. Today we know that is not true. Bacteria, for example, do not have the information to grow a hand. Once evolutionists realized that there had to be a mechanism to generate new information they had to come up with a mechanism. That mechanism is described in the Neutral Theory of Evolution. In our Spring 2020 issue we explained why the neutral theory of evolution is a colossal failure. In brief, evolutionists believe that stretches of DNA were accidentally duplicated. But, the duplicated DNA has no function. Those duplicated sections underwent mutations. Once the mutations resulting in something new and useful, that area of DNA started being used and DNA that was no longer helpful stopped being used. It became "junk." Never answered is how a cell knows that mutated DNA suddenly is useful. Also, every gene has control mechanisms. Those had to evolve at the same time. And, humans should have more junk DNA than most other organisms. We now know that virtually all the DNA is used by the human cells. There are no leftovers to mutate. Evolution has been falsified by discoveries of the past 20 years. Evolutionists live in the (now falsified) assumptions of the 1980's.
