

Creation News Update

Proclaiming the TRUTH of the Bible starting at Genesis 1:1

PRICE: Free
VALUE: Eternal

Vol. 21, #2 - Spring 2024 (#84)

But Jesus answered, "I tell you, if these (his followers) become silent, the stones will cry out!" Luke 19:40

We must speak for silence would shame us, and the rocks themselves would cry out... You, O Lord Christ Jesus, must be praised for who You are in the world You have made.

Hello! The latest science is full of new findings that show that God, in the person of Jesus, is Creator of the universe, you and us. Thank you for joining us in learning the Good News.

Guy & Cindy Forsythe

Published Quarterly in Sedona, AZ by:

PO Box 2526
Sedona, AZ 86339

Hello@CryingRocks.org

If you would like to further the cause of our Lord Christ Jesus by supporting Crying Rocks Ministry, we invite you to send a donation of any size. Please send check or money order, not cash. All donations are tax-deductible, will be acknowledged, and a year end statement will be sent after the first of each year. Your prayers are especially appreciated. Thanks!

Postal Customer

NON-PROFIT
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
SEDONA, AZ
PERMIT NO. 201
CAR-RT-SORT

Technical references for our articles are at: www.CryingRocks.org

Is Life Carbon Based?

I remember learning in Junior High that life is carbon based. That was the sentiment at the time because molecules of life contain carbon. The characteristics of a carbon atom make it an essential building block. I remember it was proposed that silicon based life could be a possibility because a silicon atom has much in common with a carbon atom regarding how it might act as base chemical for life.

See Evolution on page 2

The Eye

The eye is amazing. Though some professional cameras approach the resolution of the eye at about 256 MB, most cameras are more in the 20 to 30 MB range. Darwin was fascinated with the eye and saw it as a possible problem for evolution. Richard Dawkins and others have stated that the eye could easily be constructed by evolution. This is totally ignoring the operation of an eye. On the next page is a diagram used by evolutionists to describe how it can happen.

See Eye on page 3

Big Bang, Big Dud

I have had it with the Big Bang (BB). Many think that the BB predicted that stars would be made of 90% hydrogen and 10% helium. That was not a prediction. It was known fact before the theory. Some think the BB predicted dark matter. Once again, the idea of dark matter was conceived long before the BB. What the BB does predict (it is a prediction required by the all materialistic models) is that everything started out simple and got more complex, subatomic particles formed, then atoms of hydrogen, helium and a dab of lithium, then stars formed (in violation of the laws of physics), then groups of stars slowly created galaxies while stars exploded and heavier elements were created. Thanks to the James Webb Space Telescope (JWST) we KNOW that the earliest stars have elements heavier than hydrogen, helium and lithium. We KNOW the earliest galaxies are fully organized from the get go. Creation = Organized to less organized, following the law of entropy. The BB = Simple to complex, violating the law of entropy. Creation confirmed, the BB falsified. The BB is a big dud, scientifically speaking.

Truth

Therefore Pilate said to Him, "So You are a king?" Jesus answered, "You say correctly that I am a king. For this I have been born, and for this I have come into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears My voice." Pilate said to Him, "What is truth?" (John 18:37, 38a NASB)

See truth on page 4

Evolution from page 1

Chemistry was blocked into two basic compartments, general chemistry and organic chemistry. Organic chemistry dealt with molecules that contain carbon and general chemistry dealt with everything else chemical. Now, many chemists break chemistry into 5 areas.

The important thing to note is that all five are based on a materialist worldview, just like the rest of science. The materialists' worldview is that everything can be explained with matter, energy and the laws of physics. Somehow the laws of physics have manipulated matter and energy to produce increasingly complex organization, such as a living cell.

Evolution, up until the 2000s, was locked into this materialistic thinking. It was very simple. DNA had a code for proteins and mutations could change proteins so that sooner or later a new kind of creature would appear. This would occur via very tiny steps. This idea is what Darwin first presented as the "how" evolution happened. But, the real "how" was slowly being revealed as researchers gained more knowledge of the workings of a living cell.

Then came incredible leaps in technology. Incredible new discoveries have and are being made. Many evolutionists choose to ignore the new discoveries, and even fight against them at times, as the discoveries are a death knell for evolutionary theory... The Modern Synthesis.

Enter researchers who realized it is time to deal with reality. You won't see it in what is told to the general public, the science journals publishing the work of evolutionists are now full of papers showing that carbon is NOT the basis of life. The basis of life is information.

James Shapiro has led the revolt against those who deny the importance of information. He is well known among evolutionists and had a stellar career at the University of Chicago (also home to outspoken materialist evolutionists). Shapiro has been canceled to some degree. Doing an internet search, I had to go several pages deep before one link appeared leading to information about him, and then more pages to get to another link. An English professor dominated the search engine links. The scientist used to.

Shapiro has written: My own view is that we are witnessing a major paradigm shift in the life sciences in the sense that Kuhn (1962) described that process. Matter, the focus of classical molecular biology, is giving way to information as the essential feature used to understand how living systems work. Informatics rather than mechanics is now the key to explaining cell biology and cell activities.

We have previously printed articles showing that how creatures express the information in DNA is modified by the creatures' DNA in reaction to environmental change. The materialist view is that mutations occur and the environment selects the best mutation. That may happen on a very limited basis, but more often, there is no change in DNA, but rather a change in how the DNA is expressed. That is why adaptations to environmental changes happen so fast. In fact, if the creature had to wait around for a series of helpful mutations, the creature would soon go extinct instead.

This realization opens up a can of worms for the materialists. Astrophysicist Adam Frank states: But there's another and perhaps more all-encompassing way of understanding life that puts information front and center. In this view, what makes life special — what makes it different from all the other physical systems — is its ability to use information.

Life senses information from the environment, analyses that information, decides the best course of action to ensure survival based on the information and then implements changes in how a given stretch of DNA is to be expressed. How DNA is expressed changes. The laws of physics cannot utilize information. Utilizing information requires the ability to learn, know and UNDERSTAND the information. That means the DNA programming is making choices. Laws of science do not make choices. With laws of science, a particular set of circumstances results in only one possible outcome. This is a huge problem for the materialist.

Information may be stored in a physical manner such in DNA, on a CD, on a thumb drive or with pencil and paper. But the information is not physical. There has to be a procedure for receiving and acting on information. Information by itself is useless. The information must be received and acted upon. It is a major change in understanding biology to realize that a cell, sometimes at the organism level, receives information from the environment and then uses a change in how DNA is expressed to modify its own operation to improve survivability.

The ability to make choices requires intelligence. Information has to be analyzed and responses made based on analysis of the information. Matter, energy and the laws of science are incapable of making choices. If life can make decisions, then life must have intelligence. The ability to make decisions must be designed. That means there must be an intelligent designer.

Why the hard-headed refusal to accept the reality that life is designed? Because design requires a designer and that designer would be God in the person of Jesus. Those materialists who fight against do so because they do not want there to be a god, especially Jesus.

The goal of science is to describe reality and how reality came to be. If reality includes God/Jesus, then so be it. Scientists have found zero instances where material has created information, and we have trillions of examples of intelligence creating information. This means that materialists are anti-science. Creationists are following the evidence. Science was started by creationists. Science has been hijacked into meaninglessness by materialists who deny the truth that reality was created.

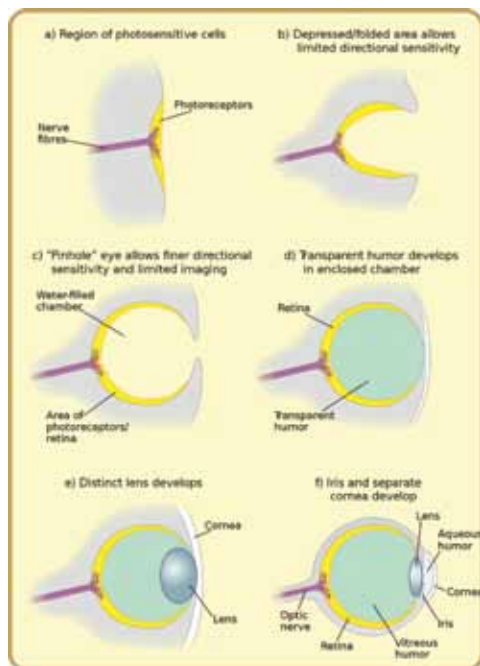

God, in the person of Christ Jesus, created the universe, you, me and the ability to create and understand information. There is a BONUS. Ask Jesus into your life as king and master and you get the best in this life and all of eternity. Jesus promises it to be so. You will still have struggles in this life but you will overcome them through Jesus. Then you live without struggles for eternity. CRM

Would you like to discuss or ask questions about creation science with the author of this newsletter?

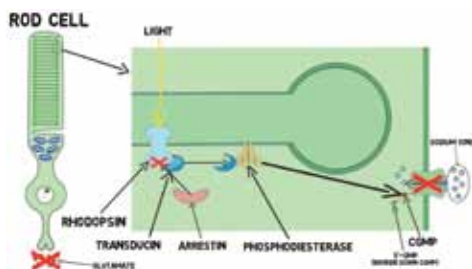

The author, Guy, is at The Gathering Place almost every Tuesday from 12:00 to 3:00 PM. Call (928) 554-4753 if you want to make sure he is there.

THE GATHERING PLACE
Coffee Community Conversation
FREE: Coffee, Tea & High Speed Internet
Where: 1835 State Route 89A (Unit 5) (just east of Picazzo's)
Hours: Tues. to Fri. Noon to 3:00 PM
A peaceful place to converse over coffee or do your internet work-from-home with a little human contact
 All Organic
 For more information:
 thegpsedona.com
 thegpsedona.com
 www.thegpsedona.com

Eye from page 1

In the first step, a cell becomes photosensitive. That is called phototransduction. To really appreciate it, click the link on our home page for a video of how photosensitivity works. It is just 2 minutes long. Here is a screen shot:

It is a complex sequence of chemical actions and reactions. It does not result from a few mutations. For that first cell to become light sensitive, a reproductive cell had to have hundreds (probably 10s of thousands) of mutations, exactly the right mutations, occur in a single individual creature.

These mutations must create the DNA needed to make all the chemicals needed and all the DNA to control the process. Evolutionists always forget that there has to be a control system.

There also has to be DNA programming to tell the developing cell how to build all this in the correct order. How does a cell know it is the one that has to be light-sensitive and all other cells are not to carry on the process of being phototransductional? That means that retina cells have to know from the beginning that they are the ones to use the new coding and all the other cell types (over 250 of them) have to know that the DNA for the construction of the retina should not be activated in them. It also has to know that it is not to function like any other of the 250+ cell types. Since the retina cell supposedly came from a skin cell, it not only has to create the vision programming, it has to turn off the skin cell programming at the exactly same time.

You can see that simply saying that a cell becomes light sensitive is like saying all you only have to do are a couple modifications so a Tonka Toys dump truck becomes a space shuttle.

Then there is the new nerve that goes from the now-light-sensitive cell to the brain. Magically this new nerve just happens to appear at just the right time. It has to know which cell to connect to and where to enter the brain.

The cell has to know how to put a signal on the nerve. There is more. The brain has to be tuned into the nerve to receive the signal. But how will the brain know what the signal means? You might reply that it doesn't need to know, it can just learn to somehow make use of it. That doesn't really make sense because eventually, there are going to be 256 MG nerves transmitting a signal from all the light sensitive cells. The brain has to know what the signals describe or we don't get vision, just a bunch of signals are basically meaningless. They would exist but have no meaning. The brain eventually has to know exactly how to put all the 256 MG signals in the correct position to form an image.

Evolutionists will have you believe that this can happen by accident. In fact, they think it happened over 60 times during the history of life as eyes suddenly appear in the evolutionary record.

In the past we have explained that the Modern Synthesis of Evolution requires huge amounts of junk DNA. All of the changes needed to make vision has to occur where it will have no effect until the entire system is complete. Then miraculously, it all gets activated at the same time because somehow the DNA knows it is time to activate the new DNA information and abracadabra, we have vision.

BUT, there is virtually no junk DNA in humans.

And, it doesn't stop there. I have just covered the first step of six in the diagram top-left. Now a circle of tissue has to form, a lens form, and more. Don't forget tear ducts and the incredible structure of the retina layers or cells for blood supply and the fiber optic structures that make sure every photon of light is detected by one (the correct one!) of the sensitive cells.

The eye exhibits the height of intelligent design. Not only is the product amazingly complex, but the process of constructing vision and operating vision is even more complex.

God in the person of Jesus is the engineer of the universe, you, me and our incredibly designed system of vision that allows us to see the world around us. Thank you Jesus! CRM

Truth from page 1

There are many ways of expressing the definition of truth. One of them summarizes all the other nuances and, at the same time, is the definition with which this article is concerned.

Truth is: The property (as of a statement) of being in accord with fact or reality. That leads to the definition of reality: The totality of real things and events.

In the Bible quote starting this article, Jesus says he came to testify to the truth. He knows truth, and therefore reality, perfectly. Also: Jesus said to him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father but through Me. (John 14:6 NASB). Please note that when Jesus uses the term "I am" He is claiming to be God.

Let's consider a theoretical situation. Let's say I have $250 in a savings account in a bank. But I identify as a millionaire and my truth is that I can therefore withdraw $1000. So I go to the bank and request my $1000. Will the bank give me the money? No. Why not? Because I have abandoned truth. I am denying reality.

Now let's say I go to see a doctor and state that I am female. The doctor sees that I exhibit traits that indicate I have a Y chromosome. The doctor does a tests and states that I am a male. The truth is that I am in fact a male.

I may wish I was female, I may prefer that I was a female. I may behave like a female. I may dress like a female. Reality, the truth, is that I am a male. Period. The truth that I am a male is in accordance with the facts, with reality.

My calling myself a female is a denial of reality. It is not truth. The most basic premise in logic is that A cannot equal Not A. For example, it cannot be raining and not raining at the same time in the same location. Only one can be true. Either it is raining or it is not raining.

Denying reality is mental illness. We are all a little mentally off because we are born imperfect sinners. But most of us understand reality/truth and manage in the world.

Some of us experience abnormally high levels anxiety, worry, fear, anger, frustration, envy, jealousy, pessimism, guilt, depressed mood, and/or loneliness. We would be described as neurotic. We may need a little counseling to deal better with reality.

Sadly, some of us have a condition of the mind that results in difficulties determining what is real and what is not real. This is defined as psychosis.

Why is it that our society is celebrating psychosis? Those who are out of touch with reality/truth seem to be in charge of determining how society functions. It is expected that the rest of us, the mentally healthy people, defer to psychotics. That is ... crazy!

It all starts with hate of Jesus, the author and only person fully aware of absolute truth. For they exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever, Amen. (Romans 1:25 NASB)

Can a person with a Y chromosome become female? No. God created man in His own image, in the image of God He created him; male and female He created them. (Genesis 1:27 NASB). God's creation through Jesus is reality.

This goes far beyond just male and female. It appears in so many topics. Reality/truth is being denied in ways most of us never dreamed (in our nightmares). It is chaos. Jesus is the author of truth, an opposite of chaos. If allowed to continue and grow, Western Society will collapse and those of us who are not ultra rich will become serfs, struggling to survive. YOUR future is at stake. CRM

QUOTE:

But the major problem is the origin of the genetic code and of its translation mechanism. The code is meaningless unless it is translated. The modern cell's translating machinery consist of at least fifty macromolecular components which are themselves coded in DNA: The Code cannot be translated otherwise than by products of translation. When and how did this circle become closed? It is exceedingly difficult to imagine.

Jaques Monod (Nobel Laureate in Medicine), Chance and Necessity, pp. 134-135

POINT:

Have you ever wondered why the female human egg is a complete cell except for 1/2 of the nuclear DNA while the male contributes nothing beyond 1/2 of the DNA? The above quote is the reason. The egg has every cell machine, structure and component. It just needs some DNA to be activated in a living person. If all you started with was DNA, there would be no life. Translating the DNA into the proteins needed for life requires thousands of machines that must already exist. Those machines translate DNA, make copies of themselves, repair damaged machines, repair DNA and much more. The DNA in every cell of your body breaks over 1,000,000 times every day. If those breaks are not repaired, the DNA cannot be translated because it cannot be read. The repair machines must be present from the start. There are over 20 machines that do nothing more than make sure your DNA is not damaged. They summon other machines to make repairs when damage is found. Somehow, the repair machines know where the damage is. In fact, if any protein in a cell is damaged, the cell somehow knows what the damage is, where the damage is located, what repair mechanism is needed, has a repair part made, delivers the repair part to the required location and the machines needed to complete the repair know where they are needed. None of this is the result of random coincidence as evolutionists claim. It is highly specified sophistication. Life is designed by an all-knowing being... Jesus!